TRIP TO THE PROMETHEAN EXHIBITION

I, along with 5 other children, were suddenly chosen to go to a Promethean Exhibition. I was most surprised and a little sad too because I had to miss PE. But I packed up my bag and left. The girls and the boys went in separate cars. I think the girls (including Mrs. Rufus and Radha Ma'am who also went) got lost because they arrived 15 minutes late. We finally entered. It was being held at the Airport Expo.

When we entered we all gasped, for it was teeming with electronics of all sizes. First, we played a voting game versus the media, which we won 4-2. After that we watched and played on some interactive whiteboards and marveled at touch-screen boards too.

We ate lunch in a nearby restaurant. There everyone ordered either Caesars salad or a sandwich and we enjoyed it. After lunch we watched a 3D video. It was very cool. We went and saw some robots too. They could move on their own and some had sensors. When I put my hands near they lunged at me. I saw some solar-powered cars and helicopters, too.

Then unfortunately I had to leave, for my mother had called. But I was given a PC game and lots of sweets too. I wish I could go there again.
